No one knows what they are doing
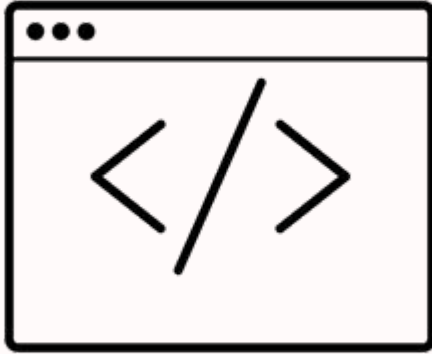

My name is Sara

I have been coding for like 10 years

I am pretty old

Misconceptions About Programming

You need formal education

Most of us don't have any education whatsoever

You have to be super smart

I failed math in high school twice

You need to know math

I also failed them both in the same year

You need to live in a tech hub

I lived in the middle of nowhere. I have 1 ATM where I lived

Feedback

We all do it for the money

Some of us do this because we actually love to code.
I code on my free time

THERE IS NOTHING WRONG WITH DOING IT FOR THE MONEY

You work 18 hours a day

If your company makes you do this please quit.
Sometimes happiness is a choice.

You don't need to talk to people

You need to be able to communicate with people very well. Most of programming is dealing with people

You have to start programming when you are young

Many of us switch careers in our 30's or older and start coding then

You need to code 24 hours a day to be a "REAL" Developer

There is no such thing as a real developer

You code , you are a real developer

All the people you admire know exactly what they are doing

Oh god, no , none of us do
